MANAGING THE PEOPLE SIDE OF LEAN ORGANIZATIONS

FOCUS

The seminar held over two evenings focuses on the people issues that arise from the implementation of 'Lean Thinking'. These issues are frequently overlooked but are the most common cause of failed implementations.

Participants who wish to apply this course for credit towards the Lean Manufacturing Certificate Program can do so by completing the necessary course assignments and paying a nominal fee for registration. Please notify the course instructor at the seminar on June 9.

YOU WILL LEARN

- Why people issues need attention if the implementation of lean is to be sustained
- What changes are required to the roles and the skill sets of people.
- How to create and sustain the changes by creating a new work environment
- Why lean affects all of the organization.
- How to develop a plan to manage issues.

WHO WILL BENEFIT FROM THIS SESSION

Everyone involved in the planning or implementation of lean thinking will benefit from this seminar. This includes people in positions of management, supervisory staff, human resource departments, team leaders and change agents

COURSE LEADER

The course leader is Graham Moore. Graham is a professional engineer with over twenty-two years of management experience in manufacturing. He has recently initiated and implemented lean manufacturing processes and has addressed the challenge of changing the organizational environment to promote and sustain lean processes.
