

QNET presents:

Five Most Common Misconceptions About Organizational Change

Friday, September 24, 2010 – 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.

Designed for leaders and individuals involved in organizational change, this interactive session introduces participants to some of the common misconceptions about organizational change and how an organizational change effort can be sabotaged, often before it has even started. Participants will learn where resistance begins and will be introduced to powerful concepts that when applied, can prevent most of the resistance currently experienced in organizations.

At this session, participants will:

- Explore the five most common misconceptions of change and their impact on a change initiative.
- Learn about the "Response to Organizational Change" to support an organizational change initiative and prevent resistance.

Presenter: Dr. Dawn-Marie Turner is President of Turner Change Management and an internationally recognized specialist in organizational change management. Her experience includes the development and implementation of organizational change programming and transition planning. She has developed her own proprietary change transition methodology (DEAM©) that increases overall capacity for change and facilitates a healthy transition in the organization. Her change management workshops help leaders to plan and implement successful change initiatives. She has published articles on business process change management, informatics and wireless technology in healthcare. She has been a keynote speaker at national conferences and a speaker at international change management conferences.

QUEST is a series of information sessions that bridge the gap between business needs and local consulting expertise. Presentations feature a variety of concepts, tools and practices relevant for today's workplace.
